

“In-House”

Scenario 1

A young man spends much of his time alone, says he will engage when asked, but refuses invitations. He puts on a happy face for a little while when people see him but is angry most often and relying on various substances to keep himself from sinking into major depression.

“Call Out”

Scenario 2

A middle-aged woman desires a healthier life. She lives alone, has some physical health struggles, but is independent most of the time. She wants the prayer support of a group, even if she cannot attend consistently. She will text with encouraging messages at least once a week and likes to receive such messages.

Scenario 3

A mom shares with the group her concerns for her daughter. The teenage daughter is withdrawn, quiet, doesn't do things that once brought her joy, and the mom noticed cuts on her daughter's leg. When the mom asked the daughter if everything is alright the daughter only talks about not fitting in at school.

Scenario 5

A dad who cares for his son with cerebral palsy expresses he is tired and needs a break from the day-to-day care of his son. He says he feels all alone and has no one to help him even with the little daily tasks.

Scenario 4

One of the group leaders came late and kept on her sunglasses inside. She tried to pretend she was okay, but someone noticed a bruise under her sunglasses. All she will say is pray for my marriage.

Scenario 6

A widow expresses her loneliness and desire for friends and companionship. Her children never visit, and she feels left behind and wants the group to pray for her. She expresses she is becoming sad, and she comes more and more rarely to group.
